

What's old is new:

Antique and Retro Appliances

By DIVA BARGAIN SHOPPER
SPECIAL TO GET STUFF

From mixers to full size ranges, this Diva loves the look of a retro kitchen. Recently, Diva visited the Loretta Lynn Ranch in Tennessee and stood in the very kitchen that woman fried up some crispy chicken. The appliances alone just about flooded this Diva, but enough about me!

Look mod on the cheap by buying old appliances and have them refurbished or restore them yourself. I have a friend who's husband is quite handy. Years ago, she inherited an incredible electric can opener and around the same time, found a wonderful 50's era Sunbeam mixer at an estate sale. The handy husband checked the safety of the cords and inner workings and re-recorded the mixer. If you're not so handy, a small appliance repair shop should be able to help you with this at reasonable cost. Ask the cost upfront to make sure it's in your budget.

Next, the handy husband took off any removable parts and taped off areas that were to remain the original color. He sprayed 2 appliances with primer. After they dried, he sanded the surfaces with steel wool and removing any residue with a sticky cheesecloth, he top coated the appliances with bright red. I believe he used 3 layers of red paint - letting them dry between coats and sanding them with the steel wool again. Anyone entering her kitchen is sure to notice and comment on the bold statement of red!

This same friend had done something similar with a huge antique stove. The only difference - she had to use high heat spray paint instead of the high gloss she used for the small appliances. Of course, you want to make sure you have adequate ventilation for any project using spray paint! Some people still use antique cast iron stoves by manufacturers like Royal Kalamazoo, Bridge Beach, Aurora and many others.

Look for deals in the classifieds, or if you're buying new, there's Elmira Stove Works for that retro look. They have Northstar Retro large appliances that look like the past but have modern features inside. They make 1950-1960s retro refrigerators, ranges, range hoods, dishwasher panels, even a microwave. For smaller appliances, some department stores carry the retro look Sunbeam mixmasters in assorted colors.

Once you have all those appliances in place, go crazy and decorate! There are so many options for a retro kitchen from simple accessories to diner-like tables and stools. Put up a shelf with your Fiesta ware collection and dazzle your friends. Who knows, Diva might just join you for lunch!
